Christina Licursi focuses her practice on trademark prosecution and litigation, including representing clients in federal courts across the country and before the US Patent and Trademark Office's Trademark Trial and Appeal Board (TTAB). Christina is based in Boston, but also supports clients from the firm's New York office.

Within her counseling practice, Christina advises clients and international associates on branding strategies and understanding the business and legal risks associated with the adoption, use, and registration of trademarks. She has extensive experience managing complex international disputes and negotiating settlement agreements. In addition to handling trademark disputes before the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board, Christina manages global policing and enforcement efforts, including coordinating targeted cease and desist campaigns and coordinating global enforcement efforts through Customs.

Christina has a strong business acumen and demonstrated ability to work closely with all levels of business. Her clients cover a variety of industries, including food and beverage, clothing, biotechnology, medical equipment, and software and telecommunications. In addition to trademark matters, Christina also handles various copyright issues, domain name portfolio management and related disputes, and social media and Internet matters.

Christina is passionate about the start-up community in the Boston area and currently serves as Co-chair of the MIT Enterprise Forum of Cambridge's Innovation Series, where she is responsible for developing the programs for the Innovation Series, the thought-leadership program of the MIT Enterprise Forum of Cambridge. These programs feature a wide variety of speakers from multiple industries and technologies who explore the issues, technologies, and market forces that drive innovation, commercialization, and market
